TRAIL ADVISORY

Welcome to the Possum Kingdom Hike and Bike Trail!

The Possum Kingdom Trail is a nature trail through a North Texas cedar and oak forest. The trail has a natural surface with a vertical rise of more than 300 feet and requires physical stamina to complete.

Persons with heart, respiratory or other medical conditions that may hinder physical exertion and women who are pregnant are cautioned to consult their physician before attempting to travel these trails. Young children may experience difficulty traveling these trails due to steep inclines and uneven surfaces.

The PK Trail winds through the natural habitat of numerous plants and animals native to North Texas, including wild turkey, whitetail deer, axis deer, bobcat, armadillo, skunk, possum and various others. Feel free to photograph as you desire, but please do not approach or threaten the wildlife. Beware of snakes that are most active late spring through the fall (rattlesnake, copperhead, and coral).

Remember to dress appropriately for the current weather conditions. This trail can reach temperatures from zero to more than 100°. Make sure you bring plenty of water with you!

Please be advised that due to the composition of the trail surface, it may be impassable during and immediately after heavy rain due to mud and runoff.

Cell phone service is unreliable in this area.

As you enjoy the PK Hike & Bike trail, you will encounter other trails. Cultural trails are paths worn as a result of human use over time. Animal trails are also common in this area. Both types of trails tend to be narrow, meandering and undefined by nature. For your safety, you are cautioned to avoid wandering off the main trail. You'll find the main trail is wide, clearly marked and is the only trail recognized by the Brazos River Authority.

It is highly recommended that visitors do not hike or bike alone.
